Uniquely amongst our motorhome awards, this one is voted for by you. And you gave the win to a dealership like no other – Marquis – which has branches around the UK.

You'll find an outlet of Marquis that isn't too far from home wherever you live in England. The furthest north is Marquis Durham, while on the opposite side of the Pennines is Marquis Lancashire. In the southwest, you're spoilt for choice with Exeter and Plymouth sites, while the south also has outlets in Dorset, Hampshire and Surrey. In the east, you'll find Marquis in Ipswich. If none of those sites sound close by, try the branches in Berkshire, Gloucestershire, Northants and South Yorkshire. And, if the 'van you like the look of from the company's national stock isn't local, you can even arrange a viewing at your nearest branch.

As well as a wide range of used 'vans, Marquis has franchises for Adria, Auto-Sleepers and Auto-Trail. But it also stocks vehicles that you won't see elsewhere in England – Benimar and Mobilvetta are well established, but for 2025 there's a plethora of new products, too. Mobilvetta has introduced its first campervan, while pop-top campervans come from a new marque to these shores, Panama. Then, addressing the issue of the rising costs of coachbuilts, the Elnagh brand returns to Britain for the first time since 2009 with its low-profile Baron range starting at £67,995. All in all, it means more choice than ever before.

Of course, Marquis has been part of the motorhome market since 1973 and is a member of both the NCC and the Camping and Caravanning Club Preferred Dealer Scheme. All of its used motorhomes (less than 15 years old) come with a three-year, unlimited mileage AutoMarq guarantee.
